COMPANY SPECIAL ISSUE

EVOLVING WITH EVERY STEP

ISSUE April 2026

I officially joined AEL-Berkman Ningbo Branch in November 2013, marking the beginning of my career in the freight forwarding industry.

At the start of my journey, as the youngest member of the team, I began with a fundamental documentation role. With the guidance and encouragement of my supervisors, I built my knowledge step by step, gradually becoming familiar with the full operational workflow of the industry. Over time, I grew into a qualified operations and customer service professional, capable of independently handling client communication, documentation, and shipment follow-ups.

As the years went by, in 2022, driven by a desire for further growth, I sought to expand my professional scope while continuing to excel in my existing role. With the support and mentorship of my leaders, I transitioned into the Marketing Department, opening a new chapter in my career. In this role, I have been continuously developing skills in market development, client relationship management, and freight rate coordination, striving to create greater value for the company.

Throughout my time at AEL-Berkman, I have witnessed the company's growth and transformation, as well as the changes within the team. I was once the youngest "little sister" in the group, and although I am no longer the youngest, my colleagues still affectionately call me by that name. This enduring warmth and sense of recognition have become one of the most meaningful and cherished aspects of my career, and a constant source of motivation.

From a newcomer to a long-standing member of the company, AEL-Berkman has not only been a platform for my professional development, but also a witness to some of the most important milestones in my life—from falling in love, to getting married, and becoming a parent. The moments shared with colleagues through team-building activities, trips, and gatherings remain vivid and deeply treasured. During times of pressure, it is these memories and the strong sense of belonging that continue to support and inspire me to move forward alongside the company.

Looking ahead, I will continue to dedicate myself to my role in the Marketing Department, deepening my expertise, responding proactively to market needs, and providing attentive service to our clients. Together with the AEL-Berkman family, I look forward to creating greater value and embracing an even brighter future.
